Congruence Detection using RNN
Final Year Project   2022 – 2023

The AI model mentioned is a machine learning algorithm that has been designed to analyze and compare the heading and body of a given text document. Its main objective is to determine whether there is a logical and coherent relationship between the two sections of the document. This model can be useful in a variety of applications, such as detecting fake news or identifying inconsistencies in legal documents. By providing accurate and reliable results, this AI-powered technology can help improve the quality and credibility of written content.
